ASK CINCINNATI HELP FINANCE DETOUR ROADS

Inter-city Rally at Pineville Last Night Discusses Situation—To Send Representative to Cincinnati

LEXINGTON ALREADY INTERESTED IN CONDITIONS

A concerted action toward gaining outside help for maintenance of bad roads on the main highway through this section was obtained last night at the inter-city good roads meeting in Pineville. Fifty-three men were present at the meeting, representatives from Corbin, Barbourville, Harlan, Pineville and Middlesboro. The outcome of the meeting was the appointment of two men from each city to go to Cincinnati to present the needs of this road at a meeting of civic organizations there tomorrow night.

The meeting last night was in conjunction with the regular Kiwanis dinner. The National Quartet of Boston, playing there at the theatre last night, gave some excellent vocal and instrumental music during the dinner. The first part of the meeting proper was given over to discussion of the building and loan association problem for Pineville. This was in charge of C. L. Enoch. John Chesney of Middlesboro, made an interesting talk on the proposition, telling what such an association meant for a town and explaining how it had built up Middlesboro. Judge Davis of Pineville also spoke, boosting the matter.

Discussion of the road situation was then taken up with R. M. Watt as chairman and Charles O'Connor, representative of the Asheville Western Carolina Motor Club as chief speaker.

Year to Finish State Road

Mr. O'Connor said, in beginning that all estimates showed that it would take three or four years to complete the road from Cincinnati to Cumberland Gap, providing road contracts are validated and the state pushes construction. In the mean time, he brought out, unless the cities along this line are willing to lose thousands of dollars the tourist travel would mean annually, some thing must be done toward making the detour from Corbin to Barbourville a permanent road until the other is finished.

Regarding the losses from the bad stretches of road, Mr. O'Connor said Cincinnati estimated they lost $2,500,000 last year because of these 21 miles of bad road. More than that, he said it cost the territory between Cincinnati and Asheville $15,000,000 last year because these 21 miles were impassable. The average tourist travel in spring and fall, if the road were good, would be 700 cars a day, he said, which would make $500,000 the loss of the cities along the line in this immediate section.

The one cent gas tax in the cities around here has done very well indeed, Mr. O'Connor went on, but the reason progress has been so slow is that this is a bigger problem than the people here realized. The detour road has no bottom and no fit throughfare can be put that way unless a real road is constructed. The building of such a road can not be financed by the gasoline tax in these towns down here and it is for this reason that the outside help must be called in.

The interest shown outside this immediate district of this road is evident in several ways. Madison county, which has repeatedly voted down a road bond issue, has appropriated 25 per cent of its tax on gasoline for this stretch. Fayette county sends all it collects for this road and Lexington has been particularly active in boosting this route. That city has $6000 in the treasury now for application here.

Interest Cincinnati

The big thing now, Mr. O'Connor continued, is to interest Cincinnati in the matter, and that was his purpose. Their gasoline tax, he showed, would be $250,000 to $300,000 a year, a good part of which would be applied to this road. Moreover, if Cincinnati organizations can be interested in this road they will give it precidence and route traffic this way.

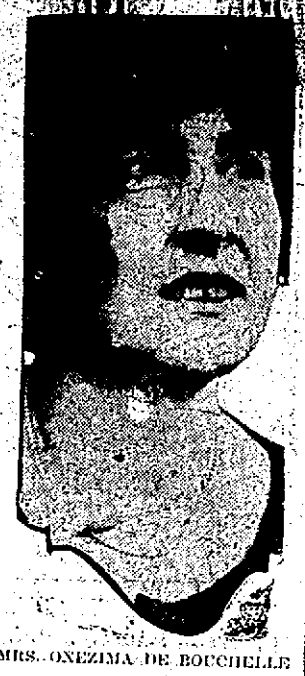
After Mr. O'Connor spoke, T. R. Hill made a motion, seconded by J. W. Cole of Barbourville, that two representatives from each of the cities represented there last night be sent to Cincinnati tomorrow night to present this road's cause to a meeting to be held there of the Kiwanis Clubs, automobile clubs and Chamber of Commerce. The motion passed unanimously and those named to go were: W. H. Davis and Fred Graham of Pineville; J. W. Cole and W. R. Lay of Barbourville; E. S. Holburn and A. P. Lieb of Middlesboro; J. W. Carter and W. W. Duffield of Barbourville, Corbin will also send two men.

Another motion passed and put into effect was to wire a resolution from the five cities represented last night to the Chambers of Commerce, the automobile clubs and the Kiwanis clubs of Cincinnati and Lexington expressing appreciation for their interest in this section and pledging support in any thing they may suggest.

The Friendship tour, planned for the middle of March if the road plans go through, was also touched upon last night. Middlesboro plans to send a delegation of about 15 business men from here to charter the Blue Goose and make the round trip overland.

Candler Wins Suit, Mrs. DeBouchelle "Surprised and Disappointed"

ASA G. CANDLER



MRS. ONEZIMA DE BOUCHELLE

MRS. MAY LITTLE RAGAN-CANDLER

Associated Press

ATLANTA, Feb. 6.—Mrs. Onezima de Bouchel "surprised and disappointed," as she expressed it, over the jury's verdict in favor of Asa G. Candler here in her half million breach of promise suit against the Atlanta capitalist was today on her way to Reno. Her attorneys today refused to say if the case would be appealed. Candler himself merely said he was "very happy."

In his charge to the jury the court delved at length into Nevada State law in regard to the validity of divorce decrees. He said the present case hinged on the question whether Mrs. de Bouchel was domiciled in Nevada when she obtained her divorce. If the plaintiff had established proper residence in that State, he declared, then the court had a right to act, but if the jury decided the stay had not been a bona fide residence her divorce was illegal, notwithstanding the decision of Nevada courts.

Neither Mrs. Onezima de Bouchel of New Orleans, who sued Mr. Candler, nor the defendant was in the courtroom when the verdict was returned. The jury was out about 45 minutes and its verdict merely said:

"We, the jury, find a verdict for the defendant."

In referring to the persons alleged to have prevented Mr. Candler's marriage to Mrs. De Bouchel, Attorney Gamble said he "congratulated them on their handiwork." He said he could picture in his own mind the group of dominating influence that prevented Mr. Candler from "following his own will."

In summing up Mr. Gamble said Mrs. De Bouchel had been irretrievably damaged by the failure of the defense to produce in flesh and blood the persons making the charge of immoral conduct against her.

Opening for the defense, Attorney Thompson read excerpts from letters written by Mrs. De Bouchel to Mr. Candler in an effort to show that she had definitely made up her mind to marry Candler before she made any attempt to obtain a divorce from Adolph Rocquet.

The defense attorney dwelt at length on Mrs. De Bouchel's letters with reference to her stay at Reno, basing arguments on the validity of her divorce.

POLICE RETURNS SHOW INCREASE

Fines Collected in 1923 Were $12,376.85, in 1922 Were Only $8,369.25

In line with other business in Middlesboro, proceeds of the city mill or justice showed a large increase over those of the preceding year. Fines collected in the city police court during 1923 aggregated $12,376.85, while those for 1922 were only $8,369.25, an increase of $1,007.60.

The police records show that 773 arrests were made last year, though, of course, convictions were not made in all the cases. The majority of the arrests were made on charges of drunkenness or other petty offenses.

December netted the largest collection of fines last year, this being partly due to the fact that a number of back fines were paid during the last month of the year, $1,448.45 being taken in during that month. The record number of arrests, 106, was made last September. Forty-four arrests were made during April, this being the lowest number made in any month.

The police department made money for the city, above the expense of their salaries which was only $8,720 last year. This includes the chief, four regular patrolmen, the part salary of one night policeman and special officers that have been employed occasionly.

All funds collected from fines last year went into the general city treasury.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE ENDORSES "FATHER AND SON MOVEMENT"

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—President Coolidge has written a letter to Walter W. Head, of Omaha, Neb., connecting his approval of the National Father and Son Movement, as a through-the-year program, with its uses in helping to improve world conditions. Mr. Head is chairman of the National Father and Son committee.

Great advances in civilization in the past, the president points out, have come as a result of the awakening of the spiritual forces within the individual, as proposed in the Father and Son program. In his endorsement of the movement, President Coolidge follows the policy of President Harding, who urged general cooperation with it on the part of the public in a letter written shortly before his death. President Coolidge's letter follows:

"In view of the present conditions throughout the world, which might involve even our own country, now so contented and peaceful, it seems peculiarly appropriate that there should be launched in our home land a program that has as its chief objective the desire that fathers re-consecrate themselves to their paternal obligations, and that the attention of sons be directed to their obligation to their fathers, to their homes and to their country.

"The Father and Son Movement is intended to lead sons to a greater appreciation of their fathers and of their homes, and to a higher respect for them. It is also intended to encourage them to accept in a larger way their responsibilities as citizens.

"With the process of recuperation now going on throughout the world, it is imperative that the basic principles on which America rests should be recognized by all our citizens. History points in no uncertain terms to the fact that great advances in civilization have come as the result of the awakening of the spiritual forces within the individual. No more appropriate way to accomplish this can be devised than that proposed in the plans of the National Father and Son Movement."

WILSON PASSES FOREVER FROM WORLD STAGE

Simple Ceremony Marks Funeral Services—Many Prominent Men Present at Cathedral Service

RESENTFUL CROWD PLANTS U. S. FLAG BEFORE GERMAN EMBASSY

Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Woodrow Wilson passed today forever from the world stage where he was once the commanding figure. In the privacy of his home the last rites were said as simple as the faith of the man himself in the goodness of God. Only the presence of the president and a few who were his colleagues in the days of greatness and the quiet thousand who waited outside under the winter skies for their humble share in the last leave-taking marked this funeral of a great man.

There was a more formal ceremony at the cathedral service which followed. There in the chapel which gives entrance to the vault of entombment were gathered the dignitaries of the government and many men of place and power in America. Organ notes and pealing voices added a touch of ceremony to the brief religious exercises but at the very last the dead passed again into the keeping of his nearest and dearest who alone might watch over the entombment and hear the resigned faith of the committal service utter.

The nation's share in the last moment was only to stand in silent reverence outside while the tomb received the keeping of this honored American. Meanwhile the busy life of the capital was still during the service and drumming gunk of sorrow boomed dully from Fort Myers.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Before daybreak today resentful persons incensed over the delay in half masting the flag over the German Embassy in mourning for Woodrow Wilson today placed an American flag in front of the building. Police removed the flag after complaint was made.

Before the vote was cast she charged the vote was a tie. After a brief exchange of words firing began and Meyer fell.

POSTAL RECEIPTS LAST MONTH $202.06 OVER YEAR AGO

General good business conditions are further indicated by an increase in postal receipts during January over those of January, 1923. The increase which was entirely unexpected considering the excellent business the first of last year, amounted to $202.06.

It is hoped that within three years receipts of the Middlesboro postoffice will have increased to such a figure that it will be numbered among postoffices of the first class. Receipts for the beginning of the year indicate that this goal will be reached by that time.

ATTENDANCE GOOD IN COLD WEATHER

Despite Distance From Outlying Districts to Central Schools, Little Absence

Despite the fact that anumber of school children have to walk three miles to school, a comparatively small percentage of these take advantage of the cold weather to remain at home on such days as this.

Middlesboro has such a large area that, with its four outlying scools and the Central and high school, pupils in remote parts of town must come long distances. The outlying schools accomodate only children in the primary grades and more advanced pupils in those sections must attend the more centrally located schools.

The record of attendance is remarkable, considering the hardships to which the younger children are subjected during cold and snowy days.

BANK SAVINGS INCREASE BILLION

The annual report of the Savings Bank Division, A. B. A., shows that more than a billion dollars were added by Americans to their total savings in banking institutions of all kinds during the year ending June 30, 1923. The report states that "savings deposits in savings banks, state banks, national banks and trust companies on June 30, 1923, are officially reported to the extent of $18,373,062,000. The increase during the year was $1,041,583,000, or 6% of the total deposits on June 30, 1922. This total of savings deposits amounts to 52% of all bank deposits in the United States as compared with 47% in 1922."

The distribution of savings deposits among different types of banks on June 30, 1923, is given as follows:

Banks	Savings Deposits
Mutual savings banks	$ 6,273,151,000

Total	$18,373,062,000

REORGANIZATION OF BOY SCOUTS

National Boy Scout week which begins Friday would be an appropriate time to effect a reorganization of the Scouts here. Spring, the season which offers numerous pleasures and recreations in scoutcraft, is not far distant, and if we are to have such an organization here it is time to begin.

Boys of Middlesboro are anxious to become members of this splendid and popular juvenile organization. Four or five troops could be formed without difficulty here and interest in the work would increase as the "tenderfoots" learn more of the lessons of scoutcraft.

The Boy Scouts of America have done more than any other agency of the purely religious institutions to implant in the boyish mind the seeds of real manhood. The purpose and ideals of the order are for the all-around development of young manhood. A four-fold development, spiritual, moral, physical and mental is possible by adherence to the lessons of the order.

There are dozens of young men in Middlesboro admirably fitted for Boy Scout executives. We have heretofore had excellent leaders but these have had to abandon the work for lack of time or other reasons. The time is ripe for volunteers for this work and whoever takes the job will have the rare privilege of doing a great public service and of bringing clean and wholesome enjoyment for our boys.

Other towns have Boy Scout organizations with permanent officers and a regular meeting place like other clubs and orders. The organizations have become fixtures in such places and would be sorely missed if taken from the towns. Why cannot Middlesboro step to the front in such a public work as it has in various other ways not any more important?

A hundred or more pleading voices are crying for such recreation and to ignore them is little less than an open invitation to juvenile vagrancy.

Present cold weather indicates the groundhog was right in his prophecy.

McAdoo says there is nothing wrong with our dollar bill. Isn't it a trifle shortsighted?

Mexicans are fighting Americans over oil rights. Now you know why some are called "greasers."

Merchant shipbuilding has been cut in half since 1913. Our ship will not come in until our ships go out.

Senator Underwood is fighting mad these days, and so are the Philippines under Wood.

New York woman paid $100,000 for a pearl necklace, but she can save by wearing old shoes. No one will notice her shoes now.

The Bible speaks of "a friend that sticketh closer than a brother." Examples are not lacking.

Approach of National Boy Scout week reminds us that the Scout work here is lagging and that leaders are wanted.

We will have to admit that the women of the library association and the P. T. A. gain their points when they come before the city meeting in a body. The mayor and commissioners are very human.

Small boys have recently been seen in pool-rooms playing game. A large percentage of patrons of these places are boys under age. Yet, many of us wonder why 733 arrests were made by city policemen last year.

Boys go in easy stages from public pool playing to secret crap shooting and from thence to police court and jail. Frequently, the road continues lowward and leads to a felon's cell. It is almost impossible to reform men but boys are usually more tractable.

LACK OF THRIFT CAUSES DIVORCES, DECLARES JUDGE

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6.—Lack of thrift has been the chief cause of recent divorces here, according to statistics prepared by Judge Ralph H. Clock of the superior court, covering about 1,000 divorce cases.

"In a number of cases," said Judge Clock, "the married couple lived together less than one day, while the greatest length of time that any couple lived together and then sought divorce was 30 years.

"Salesmen lead the comparative total of unfaithful husbands, ten per cent of the defendants in such divorce actions being of that occupation. Next in order were contractors, merchants, plumbers, painters and printers, with a few barbers. Strange to say, the list includes no attorneys—in fact, few professional men and women.

"If the idea of thrift and home-owning is to be inculcated in the minds of the American people it should be taught in the schools. Then there will be less inclination to rush to the divorce court on the slightest pretext."

IRELAND WOULD PERSUADE TOURIST TRADE TO RETURN

By Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Feb. 6.—For some years past the tourist trade in Ireland has been at its lowest ebb. Now that normal conditions of life have been restored it is hoped to revive its old prosperity, and the railway companies, as well as those in control of Ireland's famous beauty spots, contemplate an advertising campaign to lure the tourist back.

The holding of the Tailltean games in August is expected to attract to Dublin and Ireland about one hundred thousand visitors. There is still much discussion as to the possibility of housing them if they do come, but the postmaster general, who is in charge of the project, is very sanguine. He believes that the visitors can be comfortably accommodated in private houses, and he has the cooperation in his efforts of the Royal Dublin Society, the organizers of the annual horse show.

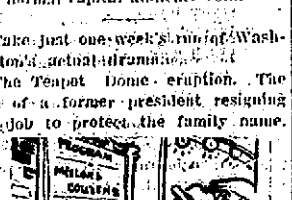
THIS LITTLE WORLD

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Washington has long been known in the show business as a "hard" town. Folks here don't seem to rise to average theatricals as they do in other cities.

We venture the explanation that this is because Washington lives in the midst of theatricals. Tragedy, melodrama, burlesque, comedy—they're an everyday part of the political drama of the Washington stage. Small wonder, then, that the stagey emotions of the average playwright leave the normal capital audience cold.

Take just one week's run of Washington's actual dramas.

The Teapot Dome eruption. The son of a former president resigning his job to protect the family name.



Mystery: Where did the $100,000 come from?

The Bok peace carnival. Suspicious senators scent League of Nations propaganda.

The Mellon-Couzens millionaire tax team in the startling novelty, "Dollars Talk."

Our Weekly Coolidge column:

'Twas Sunday morning at the home of Edward T. Clark, secretary to the president. Clark and Roger Babson, statistician, were lounging in Clark's study, perhaps studying statistics of the coming presidential vote. A ring at the doorbell. Another. Then another.

"Probably a messenger boy," said Clark. "When he gets tired ringing, he'll drop the message through the slot."

More ringing followed by vigorous thumps and kicks on the door.

"That's a persistent cuss," said Babson, "I'll run down and tell him a few things."

He ran downstairs, threw open the door and—

In stepped Calvin Coolidge, president. Out for an early morning hike, Cal had stopped in for a call on his secretary.

TAP-TAP-TAP SAYS WOODPECKER AND TELEGRAPH OPERATOR LOOKS FOOLISH

As anyone familiar with newspaper routine will know, the operator who copies the news from the wire service gets what he calls "ten" at nine-thirty in the morning. At that time the telegrapher sounder stops its noisy clackety-clack and "Sparks" sits back in his chair for a brief rest and smoke of a few minutes' duration.

Saturday morning, Loy Allen, who operates the Independent's Associated Press wire service, was dozing in his chair, taking his "ten" easy, when the familiar clack-clack—clackety-clack started and Loy started the keys of his typewriter clicking along with the message coming in over the wire.

It was a peculiar message that came in—in fact, one of the queerest ever sent over any wire. It said: "——— . . . . . ———. . . . . ———" and Loy copied the words, "this is the toughest branch I ever worked on but if I get a nice, fat, juicy worm under here, I'll be satisfied."

Loy gasped in amazement but went on copying:

"Alas! There's a big worm, I'll make a meal on him."

This was too much for the operator's nerves. He leaped to his feet and grabbed the sending key, intending to ask the operator at the other end what in the "— — — — — — — — ———" he was sending, and why. And then he saw what was causing the mischief:

A woodpecker was perched on the limb of a popular tree just outside the office window, pecking at the bark, searching for grubs and worms underneath. It was his intermittent tap-tap-tap that Loy had copied.

Loy says that this is the first time he ever knew that a woodpecker expressed his thoughts in the Morse code and he is trying to hush the matter up for fear the telegraph companies and the news wire services find it out, fire all their expensive operators and install woodpeckers in their place.—Ashland Daily Independent.

What Can You Do Toward Bringing Them Here?

Starting Out Like a Real Jumper

Berton Braley's Poem

FOR ART'S SAKE

The little seed lay in the warm, brown earth
And it said to itself, "I shall soon give birth

To a tiny shoot, which will grow to be
All in the Lord's good time—a tree.

"A tree, that the sun shall linger on,
A tree that the rain shall fall upon.

"A tall green tree beneath whose shade
Shall loiter lover and loving maid.

"In keen October and gentle May,
Around its trunk shall the children play,

"And birds shall nest in its branches high
And trill their carols to sun and sky."

The years swept on, and it all came true;
Where the small seed sprouted a tall tree grew,

And many a shy and trysting pair,
And birds and children were happy there.

A clean, green tree, in the piney wood
Whose scent was wholesome and sweet and good—

But the sawyers came, as the sawyers will,
And cut it down for the paper mill,

And dragged it far from the forest nook
And made it into an ugly book;

A book that reeked of the muck and slime
Of evil passion and lust and crime.

Yes, that is the thing that they made, ah me,
Out of the heart of a clean, green tree!

A SWEEP-DAY RIDDLE

Get out of my way, get out of my way.

"Mother Goose," said the Riddle Lady next day when the crowd had gathered in Riddle Town to hear the next riddle, "I don't want you to get offended at my riddle today. Will you please not?"

"Is it about me?" asked Mother Goose in surprise.

"Not exactly," laughed the Riddle Lady, and then saying "Excuse me," to everybody, she whispered something in Mother Goose's ear. Then Mother Goose laughed, and the Riddle Lady laughed, and they both laughed.

"Go right ahead," declared Mother Goose, winking at Nancy. "Don't mind me."

"Now for the riddle!" said the Riddle Lady. "I suppose you are all tired waiting:

"Get out of my way, get out of my way,
Doesn't everyone know that it's sweeping day?
I rush and I run and I spread out my skirt,
And shoo from my feet every wee scrap of dirt.

"I live in the corner beside the back door,
I never sit down, I just stand on the floor,
When I spy muddy footprints, or breadcrumbs, or dust,
Then out I go rushing, it just seems I must.

"I'm very old-fashioned—I've simply no style,
And I'm quite a home body—but once in a while
They take me and dress me in old ragged clothes
And leave me outside just to scare away the crows.

"Sometimes in the winter when snow is lying deep,
I clear away paths, and I sweep and I sweep,
And the boys make a snow man, then shrieking with fun,
They seize me and give me to him for a gun.

"Old Mother Goose rides me up to the sky,
And when we come back in the sweet bye and bye,
The first thing I do is to have sweeping day.
It's dreadful how dirt gathers when one's away.

"But I don't like it outdoors; I much prefer in,
To all of the places that I've ever been.
To sweep is my hobby, I love a clean floor,
Then slip to my corner beside the back door."

"It's a broom," said Nancy quickly. She had to be quick, for nearly all of the Riddle Land people had guessed it, too, and shouted it out at the top of their lungs.

"Right!" said the Riddle Lady. "And the prize is a ride with Mother Goose on her magic broom. You may start at once and take Nick with you. But be sure to be back by tomorrow."

SISTER Mary's KITCHEN

The scientific definition for "calorie" reads, "the quantity of heat required to raise the temperature of one pound of water through four degrees Fahrenheit." Briefly, "calorie" means heat unit and so many calories in a certain food means so much heat or so many energy producing units in that food.

So the daily energy requirements of the body are reckoned in calories.

The foodstuffs providing these calories belong to three groups: proteins, fats and carbohydrates.

The function of protein in the diet is to build, make muscle and repair worn out tissues. Ten to 15 per cent of the total calories in the normal diet should be a protein food. Eggs, oysters, beef, mutton, lamb, some nuts, poultry, fish and milk are the cheapest and commonest sources of protein. These foods are rich in protein while there are many others classed as protein foods containing also a fair amount of fats and carbohydrates. These combination foods are less valuable as proteins in a reducing diet.

Heat and Energy

Fat furnishes energy and heat and literally makes fat in the body. Too much fat in the diet causes an excess of fat in the body, but enough calories of fat must be provided to spare the protein from producing energy. In the normal diet about one-fourth of the total number of calories for the day should be fat calories. Butter, cream, salad oils, fat meat or fish, yolk of eggs, rich milk and any dishes made from these foods are rich in fat.

Just as oil and fat are combustible and furnish heat, so are starch and sugar or the class of foodstuffs known as carbohydrates. All starchy foods must be converted into sugar before the body can assimilate them. The mission of carbohydrates in the body is to supply heat and energy. An excess of carbohydrates will produce fat. The normal diet should consist of about two and one-half times as much carbohydrates as fat. If the daily fat calories average 550 the carbohydrate calories should average around 1284.

Personal Needs

In considering the daily food requirements, the season of the year; weight, height and shape of each person; age, occupation and sex must be regarded. For instance, a woman ordinarily needs less food than a man, but if women must do her spring cleaning or family washing, on that day she will need more calories of foodstuffs than her husband at work in his office. A young person who is growing needs more calories a day than one who has "his growth" and requires food only for the normal activities of the body. By the same token an old person needs and should eat less food than a middle-aged active individual.

Scientists agree that the average person doing the average daily tasks need around 2500 calories of fat, protein and carbohydrates a day.

Aside from these calories iron should be present—about .015 gram daily. Green vegetables, egg yolk, beef, molasses, oat meal, figs, prunes, dates, raisins, almonds and chocolate are rich in this ash constituent.

One pint of milk per person provides the necessary .68 gram of calcium in the normal diet. Children of course require more to make hope.

They All Agree

Look at this picture and you'll not wonder that Miss Jean Shields has been awarded first prize in five beauty contests. Her latest victory, in Cincinnati, carries with it a trip to the orient with a two-weeks visit at Honolulu. Before winning the Cincinnati contest, she was judged the most beautiful girl in Kansas City, Mo.

SELLS DAUGHTER TO GET MONEY FOR MOTHER-IN-LAW'S FUNERAL

By Associated Press.

PEKING, Feb. 6.—A young Chinese woman, nearly-stricken through the long absence of her husband, recently sold her five-year-old daughter for $70, and used the proceeds to bury her mother-in-law, according to Peking police records.

The husband many months ago joined one of the army divisions in Hupeh. The young wife supported her aged mother-in-law and child by sewing, she was highly respected by her neighbors because of her piety and diligence.

When the old woman died the daughter-in-law, prompted by devotion born of generations of reverence for the elders of the family, sacrificed her child that her husband's mother might receive proper burial.

FELT TIRED, SO TIRED

Indiana Lady Says She Was Run-Down, Suffered With Her Back, Took Cardui, and Got Well.

Richmond, Ind.—"I thought I would write a line or so, to say that I owe my good health and strength to Cardui," says a letter from Mrs. Cora Courtney, 31 Railroad Street, this city.

"I was all run-down until my family thought they would lose me," writes Mrs. Courtney. "My husband coaxed me to take Cardui, so, to please him, I did, and will say I do not regret it, for I am able to do all my work and do my shopping.

"I have five children, four in school, my husband and a boarder to do for, and I do all my own work for all of us, and find time to play. We all praise Cardui. Every sick and run-down woman should take this wonderful medicine.

"I suffered with my back; a very weak feeling in my limbs.

"I felt hardly able to drag; just tired—so tired all the time.

"It was an effort for me to do anything, but Cardui helped me so I felt like a different woman."

If you are in a run-down physical condition, suffering as this Indiana lady says she did, give Cardui a fair trial. It should help you.

Take Cardui. NC-147

BURBANKING IN FASHION'S GARDENS

There are Burbanks of fashion, too, who "cross" their periods, and mix their countries and their designs, with strange and fascinating results. Here is Madame, for instance, looking like a Chinese Pierrette of Cossack extraction, smiling inscrutably at the world, and quite refusing to give up the formula of her costume. The Cossack fights the Chinese in this frock of grey brokado krepe with its gay red bows and bands of veltyn ribbon. The side closing and the long close sleeves favor the wild riders of the Steppes, but the long straight tunic with its side slashes gives too Oriental a flavor to let the Cossack have it all his own way, and out of the melee emerges a most piquant ensemble. The tunic is collared, cuffed and bordered with wide bands of white fox. The fur collar is happily removable, so that the interesting Chinese neckline may be shown. This is formed by a narrow upstanding band of the veltyn, and a feminine note is added by the looped bows which extend backwards with a dangling "follow-me" streamer. There is something particularly charming about this combination of soft grey, vivid red, and fluffy white, which reminds us of the red-breasted robin, snow covered Christmas trees, hollyberries, and all the other accompaniments of the festive season. Madame adds a touch of western sophistication to the lure of the east in this costume, with a huge black satin hat which extends beyond her slim shoulders and entirely covers her mocking eyes.

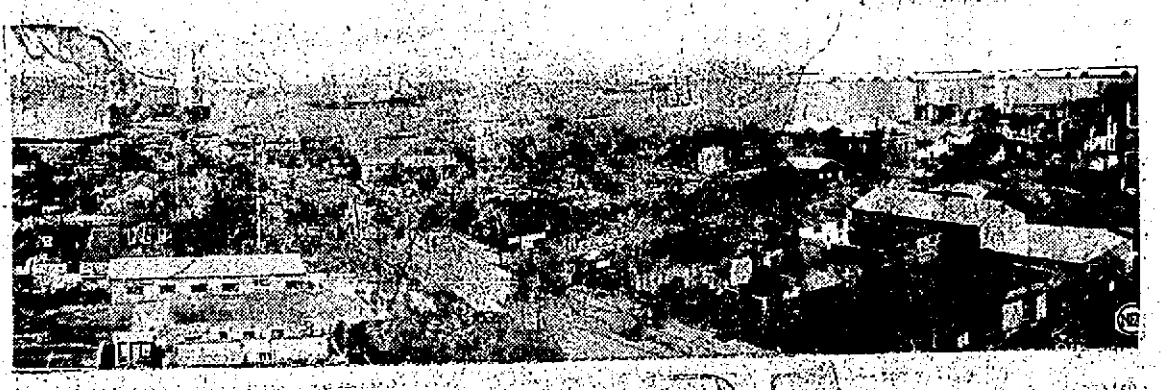
A NEW YOKOHAMA ARISES FROM RUINS OF OLD CITY



Out of the ruin and devastation of the September earthquake is arising a new Yokohama, Japan's second city. Scores of tiny, fragile bungalows and temporary buildings are springing up on the sites where buildings were razed and materials is being rushed in from all parts of the world for a comprehensive program of business house building. All of the houses shown in these pictures except some charred hulks, have been built since the disaster. The picture was taken for the Admiral Oriental Line, American shipping company, whose buildings were also wiped out in the disaster.

Poles, Wire and Apparatus Added by the Carload

MORE than 7,500 poles—125 carloads—were added to the Bell Telephone System in Kentucky during 1923.

Other items of material which were also added during the past year were 17 carloads of cable and two carloads of copper wire.

To complete the extensions and meet the growth which demanded such large quantities of poles, wire and cable, the telephone workers broke all previous construction and installation records last year.

This material, equipment and work represented an additional investment of more than $839,000. Most of it was new money, secured from investors who have faith in the future of the telephone industry in this state.

During the next five years more than $7,507,000 must be invested in the Bell Telephone System in Kentucky to provide adequate and efficient telephone service when and where it is needed throughout this growing state.

The success of this big undertaking depends largely upon your continued friendly interest and encouragement.

ROAD CONTRACT IS HELD LEGAL

Appeal Will Be Taken from Judgment of Franklin Official In Test Suit

FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 6.—Judge Ben G. Williams, of the fourteenth circuit court district, Saturday adjudged that road contracts let by the state highway commission were legal. An appeal will be made from the court's judgment, which came shortly after state Representative Lewis Lewis, representing the contractors, made his closing argument.

During Mr. Lewis' closing argument he was beset with questions from former Chief Justice John D. Carroll, of the court of appeals; Attorney-General Frank E. Dougherty and former Attorney-General Charles I. Dawson, representing the commission.

Judge Carroll, representing the commission, began the arguments with a stand that the commission had not exercised its authority in letting road contracts involving millions of dollars.

The proceedings of morning and afternoon were given up to the procuring of tabulated proof as to whether the state highway commission had exceeded the awards in contracts in an amount more than the resources of the state were able to pay.

Mr. Boggs gave the amount of all outstanding contracts to December 1, 1923, as $8,305,231.23, of which he said the federal government pays $7,449,076.48, counties enjoying the benefits of the roads $3,591,184.82, leaving as the state's share of the cost $1,551,973.88.

The amount involved in the controversy over the validity of the contracts in this case, he testified, totals $2,904,018.35, of which the federal government contributes $509,287.93, the counties involved, $487,000 and the state $1,908,230.42, coming out of the road fund.

When the proceedings started the counties of Lee, Knox, Owen and Owsley filed an intervening petition and asked that it be taken as their answer in the case. The answer set up that the counties had an interest because of roads to be built in their counties and they were therefore entitled to be heard, because of awarded contracts for which they had contributed funds.

Prominent Quaker and Health Expert On Child Relief Mission to Germany

Henry T. Brown Heads Organization. Dr. Haven Emerson Goes To Make Survey.

FEEDING starving children in Germany is the mission of Henry Tatnall Brown, a prominent Philadelphia Quaker, who recently called on the Major-ge Dr. Haven Emerson, professor of Public Health Administration at Columbia University who accompanied Mr. Brown went to make a child health survey in Germany.

Mr. Brown goes to Germany to make charge there of the organization of the American Quakers, who are arranging to feed 3,000,000 undernourished German children this winter with the $10,000,000 being raised by the American Committee for Relief of German Children, with national headquarters at 19 West 44th Street, New York City and of which Major-General Henry T. Allen, U. S. A., commander of the American Forces on the Rhine, is the chairman.

Indorsed by President Coolidge

The departure of Mr. Brown and Dr. Emerson comes immediately following President Coolidge's public indorsement of the work of General Allen's Committee to prevent wholesale starvation in Germany this winter and within a few days of Secretary Hoover's publication of the fact that 20,000,000 people, representing one-third of the entire population of Germany, are suffering acute privation as a result of lack of food and that "the situation is one of rapid degeneration."

"My mission," said Mr. Brown, who is president of the Brown and Sailer Company of Philadelphia, is to relieve the suffering among Germany's undernourished children and to prevent them from starving. At present a native German organization, a non-partisan, non-sectarian general committee is feeding 500,000 children a day. To meet the distressing need we must increase it to 2,000,000 or perhaps more as quickly as possible.

Ambassador Houghton's Letter

Immediately upon arriving in Berlin Mr. Brown will confer with American Ambassador Houghton, who stated in a personal letter just received by General Allen that "Matters here drift along from bad to worse. The conditions are very severe. Help is absolutely justified. I can only hope and pray that it may come soon."

Conferences with the German Chancellor, the Food Minister and other officials and with the district representatives of the German Committee now operating will then be held.

"There is one thing I want to make clear," Mr. Brown said, "it is that every dollar turned over to the Quakers by the American Committee for Relief of German Children will be spent for food purchased at the lowest possible prices, chiefly in the United States, to prevent starvation in Germany this winter. The American Friends Service Committee pays all the expenses and all overhead charges for our workers who go to Germany. We have assurances that the German Government will meet transportation, warehousing and insurance costs in Germany, as in the past. The German Government is now supplying all the flour and sugar used, which amounted to 47 per cent of the $12,000,000 worth of foodstuffs we distributed in Germany since the Armistice.

"The actual work of preparing and distributing the food will be done by German civilians supplied by the German Committee without cost to our organization. But of course the work will all be done under the direct supervision of our group of American Quakers. William Eves of Philadelphia will sail in two weeks to assist in this work."

Dr. Emerson's Purpose

"My purpose in going to Germany at the invitation of the American Friend's Service Committee (Quakers)," said Dr. Emerson is to obtain first-hand more recent and comprehensive facts regarding the situation there than can be secured from official publications."

Dr. Emerson's connection with the Quakers and the American Committee for Relief of German Children is that of a distinguished expert and student of preventive medicine. He is one of the foremost authorities in the country, having made surveys of health conditions in Cleveland, St. Louis, Buffalo, Louisville and San Francisco during the past five years following his term as Health Commissioner of New York City during the Mitchel Administration.

A HEAVY BURDEN

A bad back makes life miserable for many Middlesboro people.

A bad back is a heavy burden.

A burden at night when bedtime comes.

Just as bothersome in the morning.

Ever try Doan's Pills for it?

Know they are for kidney backache—and for other kidney ills?

If you don't, some Middlesboro people do.

Read a case of it:

W. B. Chadwell, proprietor of shoe shop at Cumberland avenue, says: "Doans Pills have been my kidney medicine for years. My kidneys were weak and irregular and my back bothered me dreadfully at times. No doubt the work I am doing has had a lot to do with bringing on the trouble. Sitting at the bench is hard on the back and kidneys. Sometimes I had to pass the secretions often in the day and also at night. Doan's Pills have strengthened my kidneys and I have had but little trouble for a long time."

GEORGETOWN, Ky., Feb. 5.—Marvin Arams of Bardstown, Kentucky, has been elected permanent all-time Alumni Secretary of Georgetown College and will take charge of his work May 1.

Sometime ago the trustees of the College met with prominent alumni and declared that for the expansion of the institution a full secretary was necessary and authorized a committee of the Alumni to appoint someone to take charge of the work of organizing the alumni of the school on a scientific basis.

The committee held several meetings and finally offered the position to Marvin Adams, a graduate of the College in the class of 1922. The offer was made and Mr. Adams accepted and will begin his active work on May 1.

MANAGER OF DETROIT AUTOMOBILE CLUB DECLARES KENTUCKY IS LOSING HUNDREDS OF TOURSITS

DETROIT, Feb. 6.—Kentucky will never be able to complete a primary system of good roads for many years to come without issuing bonds to pay for them.

No state of its size can for years given hard-surfaced as the Dixie Highway and the Midland Trail—on the so-called "pay-as-you-go" plan.

The state is losing millions of dollars every year because of poor roads.

Arguments that the state pays twice for a productive improvement in paying interest on bonds that provide funds to create it are just "plain bunk."

Next Should Help Pay

Permanent roads will last beyond the years of the generation that builds them, and it is only fair that the next should bear some of the expense.

These are some of the statements of W. S. Gilbreath, manager of the Detroit Automobile club, one of the largest in the world, in discussing the road bond phase of the $75,000,000 bond issue proposed by Gov. W. J. Fields.

He gave some figures to indicate what the state is losing by the failure to attract tourist trade, because, he said, that is the most easily demonstrated.

Since October this club has routed from Detroit and this section approximately 2,000 tourist parties bound for Florida. Every one of them were sent 600 miles out of their way by Washington, instead of over either one of the two branches of the Dixie Highway leading through Kentucky. We had to. Nobody who has been in Kentucky in recent years would have the nerve to send anybody over the stretch north of Georgetown, or south of Richmond, through that mountain section.

Expenditures of Tourists

"It is conservative to say that every member of an automobile tourist party crossing a state the size of Kentucky will spend $5 a day. We know that from our experience. In every machine there is an average of four persons, our statistics also show. And it is safe to say that in crossing the state each party would spend one day or more.

"Figure it up for yourself—2,500 cars, 10,000 tourists, $5 a day, one day each, $50,000. And that is just for the tourist trade for one season of the year over one route from one small section of the country. And it is just the tourist trade. Nobody can begin to estimate the chief gain from roads that can be used by all classes of vehicles all the year 'round. It is like trying to estimate how much the arteries in your own body are worth to you. It's millions a year anyhow."

Mr. Gilbreath and other officials of the club, while stating that they had been following in general the proposal for better roads in Kentucky, decline to discuss in particular the various provisions of Governor Fields' proposal, pleading that they could not do so without further study and advice.

"Let me tell you one little incident. Several years ago I made a tour of the Dixie Highway, down through Lexington, and on through Rockcastle and Laurel counties where conditions were so bad. It took hours for us to negotiate one 15-mile stretch. To cross the state it took me a week what with my speaking engagements and other delays. But if I had been on the same tour in Michigan it wouldn't have taken half that time. That's from an outsider's standpoint."

PARSONS MURDER CASE ON DOCKET

Jerry Reed, Negro Convict, to Face Trial for Slaying of School Teacher

RICHMOND, Feb. 6.—The February term of the Madison Circuit Court convened yesterday.

The most important case on the docket is that of the Commonwealth against Jerry Reed, negro, brought here on a change of venue from the Harlan Circuit Court. Reed is charged with the murder of Miss Laura Parsons, Pine Mountain Settlement school teacher. H. C. Winnes, then an Assistant State Veterinarian, was first charged with the murder, and was tried in the Harlan Court. The jury failed to agree and the case later was filed away. Later John Marcum and James Robinson, the latter a negro from the convict camp nearby, were dismissed by the Harlan Circuit Court.

The trial of Jerry Reed, who also was at the convict camp is set for the thirteenth day of the term, which will come February 18. C. C. Wallace of his city, is counsel for the defendant.

Seventy-six criminal cases are on the docket for today.

The case of the Commonwealth against George Colson of Bell county charged with the murder of Ira Ball about two years ago, also will come up at this term, but is likely to be continued. In this case the Court of Appeals reversed a seven-year sentence imposed on him.

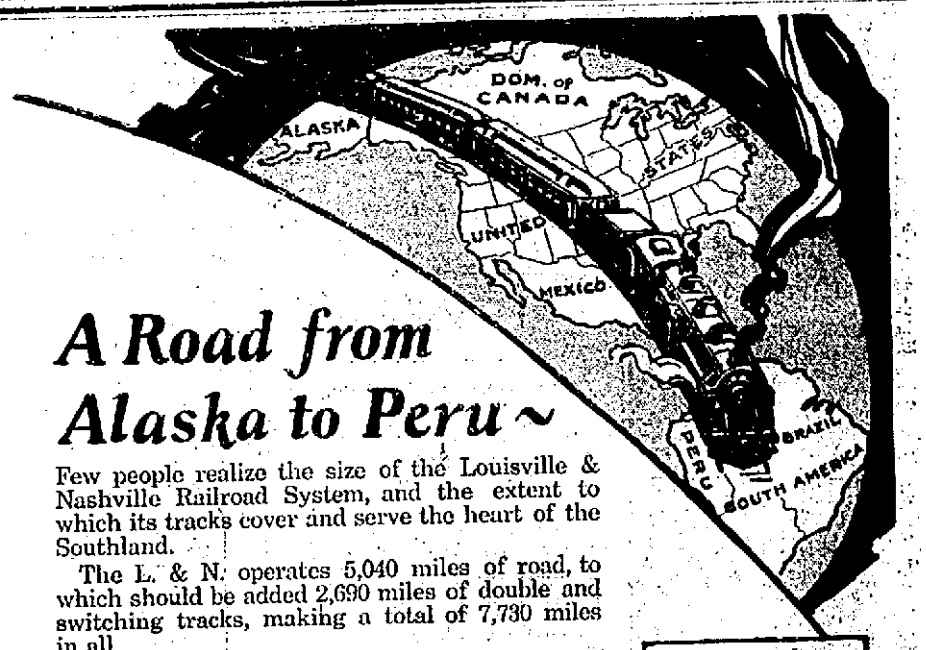
"Where a Warm Welcome Awaits You"



A Road from Alaska to Peru

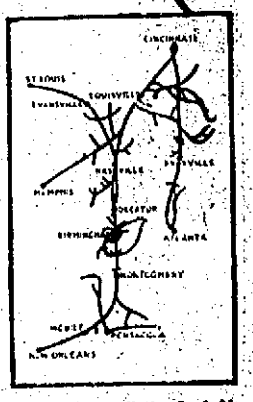
Few people realize the size of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad System, and the extent to which its tracks cover and serve the heart of the Southland.

The L. & N. operates 5,040 miles of road, to which should be added 2,690 miles of double and switching tracks, making a total of 7,730 miles in all.

If all of the tracks operated by the L. & N. were placed in a continuous line, they would form a road stretching from Alaska, to Peru, in South America; or, they would lay a double track from Boston to San Francisco, with some to spare.

The L. & N. enters thirteen states; connects more than a dozen large cities and serves a vast urban and rural population.

The L. & N. System is one of the vital links of the great chain of railroad transportation in this country; it renders to people living within its territory a freight and passenger service unsurpassed.



Look at the map. See how well the L. & N. tracks blanket the territory from the Ohio to the Gulf—uniting and serving the many important communities located therein.
